MAAR 2000 with Ottery corrections, 2007: The Copeland-Finn-Drummond House is a Georgian, brick, three-bay, side-passage, double pile dwelling with modern additions. The brick is laid in glazed Flemish bond. The gable roof is covered in slate and there is an interior, gable-end corbelled chimney. The windows are six-over-six on the first floor and two-over-two in the dormers on the front slope of the roof.

The one-story, gable-roofed, kitchen wing was added after World War I by lawyer Windenberg from Richmond. A rear wing was added in 1971. Skylights have been added to the rear of the house on the second floor, the rear addition, and the enclosed porch.

The root cellar has been converted into a bedroom.

The fireplace in the parlor was rebuilt and the opening reduced by one foot in length; the original plate remains in place.

On the first floor, the ceiling rafters are pit-sawn, mitered and pegged; some hand-hewn rafters were noted. There is an original door under the stairs leading to the lower level. The front door leads into the parlor, where stairs with plain newel post and rails, lead to the second floor. The brick fireplace with wood mantel in the parlor is surrounded by inset bookshelves. In the dining room is a fireplace with a decorative wood mantel and one brick end wall.

DHR ID#: 114-0005 Other DHR ID#:

The second floor features an end brick fireplace and wooden floors. There are exposed A-frame wood rafters.

Significance Statement

2000: This ca. 1720 home is endangered by future development in the area.

2006: Due to the age of the resource, it is recommended eligible for the National Register under Criteria C for Architecture and Craftsmanship, as a rare example of an early eighteenth-century brick dwelling in Flemish bond. The modern additions seem sympathetic, and although skylights are not sympathetic, they are contained to the rear of the house and are not visible from the streetscape.

2007: This Colonial dwelling was built in 1720 and has since added three later aditions. As a brick structure from the early eightenth century, it is one of the oldest remaining buildings in the City of Hampton. The additions have somewhat altered its appearance, but its historic core and characteristic features such as glazed header Flemish bond and corbelled chimney are still intact.
